With South Africa currently in its Third COVID-19 wave, it's imperative for members to understand the importance of getting vaccinated with the COVID-19 vaccine, when the time comes. Although the vaccine cannot prevent you from getting infected with the coronavirus, it can prevent you from getting severely ill or even death, should you get infected.

Findings of the latest study, published 8 June 2021, determined that: "...fully vaccinated people who get COVID-19 are likely to have a milder, shorter illness and appear to be less likely to spread the virus to others."

The study furthermore found that fully vaccinated patients (2 doses of the Pfizer vaccine), showed more than a 90% protection against the disease as well as against the severity of the disease. Even partially vaccinated patients (1 dose of Pfizer vaccine), show 81% protection against the disease.

The study clearly shows that the vaccine works. By getting vaccinated you not only protect yourself, but also your loved ones.
